

COLORADO WATER CONGRESS BOARD APPLICATION

Overview

The Colorado Water Congress is governed by a Board of Directors (“Board”) comprised of members that reflect the diverse geographic and professional interests of the water community. The CWC Board has 30 voting members and 4 non-voting ex-officio members. Board terms are for 3 years and there are no term limits.

The Board is the sole authority to set policy for the Colorado Water Congress (“CWC”). Board members have legal and fiduciary obligations to the CWC membership to represent the best interests of the Colorado Water Congress. Responsibilities of the Board include periodically reviewing and approving the CWC mission and strategic direction, annual budget, programs, and key financial transactions. Board members are expected to volunteer time, raise funds, and commit to ensuring the success of the CWC.
